Globally, 67% of people who inject drugs are infected with hepatitis C. In some countries it is as high as 97%.

10 million people who inject drugs worldwide have hepatitis B or C.

Vaccination rates for hepatitis B among people who inject drugs are lower than in the general population.

Stigma and discrimination of people who use drugs stops them getting tested and treated.

Don't share:
- Spoons
- Straws
- Bank notes
- Pipes
- Needles
- Syringes

1.2 million injecting drug users have hepatitis B.

Demand vaccination.

The World Health Organization estimates that harm reduction interventions reduce hepatitis C virus transmissions among people who inject drugs by 75-80%.

References